Rapunzel

Once upon a time, there was a young woman expecting a baby. Every day, she looked at her neighbor's garden and had a craving for the beautiful greens growing there. Her husband snuck into the garden to get the greens but was caught by the neighbor, an old sorceress. As a punishment, the sorceress took the baby, named her Rapunzel, and raised her in a tower with no doors or stairs, only a window at the very top. Rapunzel had lovely long, golden hair tied into a large braid. Every day, the sorceress would visit her and called out "Rapunzel, Rapunzel, let down your hair" and used the hair to climb into the tower.

One day, a young man was walking through the forest and heard wonderful singing; it was Rapunzel. He learned how to get into the tower, and he and Rapunzel became friends. They planned to escape and get married, but the sorceress discovered his visits. She cut off Rapunzel's hair, and left the young woman stranded in the forest. The young man came to the tower expecting to see Rapunzel, but found the sorceress. In his hurry to get away, he was wounded by thornbushes. Rapunzel and the young man found each other in the forest. Rapunzel shed tears of happiness, and those tears healed the young man's wounds. The pair lived happily ever after.
